Job Description and Person Specification

Judicial Governor

The Inns of Court College of Advocacy

The Inns of Court College of Advocacy (ICCA) delivers high quality, innovative and flexible academic and professional education and training by:

- Addressing the training needs of Bar students and practising members of the Bar throughout their career;
- Creating training and professional development resources, when the ICCA is best placed to do so effectively, for delivery by others in particular the Inns, Circuits and Specialist Bar Associations;
- Delivering training nationally and internationally where the ICCA is best placed to do so.

ICCA is the educational and training arm of the Council of the Inns of Court (COIC). COIC is a registered charity funded by the four Inns of Court. The work of the ICCA is undertaken by a professional staff led by the Dean. It is overseen by the ICCA's Board of Governors, which reports to COIC.

In addition to its well-established programme of advanced training for qualified practitioners and its publications, the ICCA has developed an innovative course (the ICCA Bar Course) for students who wish to qualify as barristers. The ICCA Bar Course has received substantial financial backing from the Inns of Court. It aims to reduce the present high cost of qualification and to widen the diversity of recruits to the profession. The first cohort of students began the Course in September 2020 undertaking the first part of the course online.

There are 12 Governors, comprising the Chair, Vice-Chairs, four Governors nominated by each of the Inns of Court, a legal academic, a Judicial Governor, one lay Governor who has special expertise in professional education outside the law and one lay Governor with financial expertise.

There are standing sub-committees including the International Committee (providing training abroad), the Finance and Operations Committee and a number of committees that oversee the running of the ICCA Bar Course. Project committees and working groups are established from time to time.

All Governors (including the Judicial Governor) assist the COIC Trustees in guiding the work of the ICCA and setting the strategic direction and priorities, ensuring the ICCA is solvent, well run, avoids unreasonable risk, and that it complies with its governing documents, charity law and other legislation. In particular, Governors:

- provide strategic inspiration, advice and guidance both to the Trustees and to the ICCA volunteer contributors and staff;
- assist the Trustees to support and hold to account the Dean and staff team of the ICCA;
- encourage and support the work of volunteer contributors;
- promote excellence in advocacy and ethical standards;
- plan the direction, development, activities and budget of the ICCA;
- represent the ICCA and promote its work;
- attend events on behalf of the ICCA;
- chair meetings of sub-committees as required;
- ensuring that the ICCA prepares accurate reports and accounts as required by law or the Trustees;
- obtain expert advice when needed;
- assist in the appointment of senior volunteers, staff and Governors when required.
